

Electromagnet: A coil of wire, usually wound around a core of iron or steel, which produces a magnetic field where electricity flows through the wire

Core: The material around which a coil is wound.

Coil: A wire wound repeatedly around a central core.